Dear Customers & Partners,

Our best wishes to you and we hope that you, your loved ones and your teams are all safe & healthy.

We want to assure you that DenseLight Semiconductors is focused on delivering to our customers' needs both on production as well as on new product development. We have implemented a Business Continuity Plan (BCP) that allows us to segregate our workforce to ensure our team members' well-being as well as continue to focus on business operations. We are committed to providing timely updates to our people to ensure everyone feels safe and morale is strong.

As a global photonics solutions provider, we are leveraging our advantages of remaining agile, flexible thru a diversified supply chain, and resilient. Each of you plays a vital role and we thank you for your partnership and support during this uncertain time.

On Apr 3rd, the Singapore government announced an elevated set of distancing measures where only essential business could remain open. The Semiconductor industry has been recognized as one, and DenseLight will continue its operation. We expect no disruption in our supply chain. We've also implemented further safety measures to protect our staff.

If you have any questions on our BCP plan and how it impacts you, our customer or partner, please contact Soma Sankaran our VP of Sales and Marketing, E: soma.sankaran@denselight.com.

Be safe, and please do not hesitate to call if you need our support.
